GHI Greener Greenbelt Initiative Topic of Stakeholder Meeting

by Thomas X. White

The Greenbelt City Council and the board of directors for Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) met on Wednesday evening, June 13 in a stakeholder session held at the GHI board room. Generally, on an annual basis, council schedules worksessions with various city business, housing and neighborhood groups to address their concerns and issues and to provide updates on city programs and activities.

The city meeting with GHI was well attended. The entire council, city manager and assistant city manager represented the city, and nearly all of the GHI board, GHI Manager Gretchen Overdurff and members of the GHI Audit Committee were present.

Members of the newly-elected GHI board included President Sylvia Lewis, Vice President Sheila Alpers, Treasurer Suzette Agans, Board Secretary Dorothy Lauber and members David Morse, Luisa Robles, Errol Mazursky and Edward Hickey. GHI Audit Committee members present were Marat Moore and Dianne Wilkerson.

As host of the meeting, GHI provided council with a detailed agenda including a GHI update on the "Greener Greenbelt Initiative" (GGI) being led by the board's "Green Ribbon Task Force." This long-range effort is designed to ensure that the housing cooperative and the Greenbelt center city will continue to serve as a national model for livable communities by 2037 when Greenbelt reaches its 100th anniversary.

Other Topics

Other topics on the GHI agenda included the city's Forest Preserve Ordinance, Zoning Variance, Lights at the Northway (Wolfe) Field, City Police Department/GHI Relations, the recently enacted city tax increase and a variety of quality of life issues for GHI and its neighbors.

Discussion of the GGI activities led off the agenda. Jim Cohen, the GHI member chairing the Green Ribbon Task Force, and Board Member Suzette Agans updated council concerning preliminary results of a survey conducted during the May 2007 annual GHI meeting. Members were asked to rank energy, ecological and economic sustainability issues facing the cooperative.

Among the top 10 issues tabulated in those preliminary results were rankings for walkability of the GHI community; preservation and maintenance of common green space, woodlands and trails; heating and air conditioning systems; energy conservation and sustainable design solutions. Other issues were home insulation; alternative forms of energy for heating, cooling and power and GHI's economic sustainability as a cooperative. Still other concerns were the economic vitality of Roosevelt Center and preservation of woodlands and parks adjacent to or surrounding the GHI community.

The ensuing exchange between council and Cohen focused on how the survey might be made more inclusive within the larger Greenbelt community. Cohen emphasized that the survey was not intended as a scientific analysis; rather, it was an informal survey on members' ideas for the future.

Cohen invited city participation and agreed with council that

Lenore Thomas Sculptures Are Repaired and Cleaned

by Barbara Simon

You may have noticed that the sculpted frieze on the outside of the Community Center looked cleaner this month. You may even have seen that some repair work was done on the Mother and Child Statue in Roosevelt Center. These were the results of conservation treatment in May and June by Conservation Solutions, who were contracted by the City of Greenbelt to work on these artworks originally created by Lenore Thomas when Greenbelt was first built in the late 1930s. Half of the funds for this project were paid through a matching grant from the Maryland Historical Trust.

Conservation Solutions, who worked from their local office in Washington, D.C., do restoration work all over the country on architecture and sculpture as in Greenbelt, but also on bridges, fountains, industrial, agricultural and military artifacts.

The work on the friezes consisted of in-depth cleaning and repointing. The friezes had been heavily painted at one time and this paint had to be thoroughly cleaned off, along with biological growth and rust stains. The rust stains come from the window frames. Further stains can be prevented by keeping the paint coating on the window frames well maintained. The conservators provided the city with a

July 1 Artful Afternoon Will Feature Dancing and Lanterns

The next Artful Afternoon will be held at the Community Center from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, July 1 and will include lantern making, contra and square dancing in addition to the monthly artists' studio open house. This month's free program for all ages is a celebration of summer.

Participants will create a pierced metal lantern to brighten up balmy evenings in a program led by Greenbelt Artist-in-residence Marla McLean. The lanterns can be decorated and personalized with permanent markers. Lantern making will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. and all materials will be provided.

Dancing

At 3 p.m. in the gym, families, friends and neighbors will gather to swing, square and round dance accompanied by a local band and caller. The musical group "Swings and Roundabouts" includes Greenbelters Anne Gardner on fiddle, Jon Gardner on guitar and Janet Lenhardt on clarinet. Also a Greenbelter, caller Susan Taylor is in demand along the Eastern Seaboard, recently traveling from Baltimore to Philadelphia and West Virginia and back to Greenbelt. Taylor considers herself the hostess of the dance wherever she calls. She is a nationally known dance caller, bringing her exuberant style to barns, weddings, school and church halls, elegant ballrooms and airplane hangers. An actress, dancer and singer, Taylor has been teaching for 11 years at the Baltimore School for the Arts and has been teaching Music Together since January 2003. She is also a movement professional, a Certified Movement Analyst through the Laban/Bartenieff Institute of Movement Studies in New York.

Art Gallery

The display in the Community Center Art Gallery's re-opening show is "Searching for Life on Planet Earth: Digital Artwork by Bridget Zalewski Sullivan." Sullivan, a Towson University faculty member, presents images from a body of work concerning the struggle for continued survival of the Earth and its inhabitants. The exhibit will remain on display through August 12. The gallery is open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m., Monday through Saturday and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Sunday whenever the room is not reserved. To confirm availability call 301-397-2208.

Additional activities continuing from 1 to 5 p.m. include an afternoon of open studios, whimsical sculpture displays scattered throughout the Community Center and tours of the historic 1930s home operated by the Greenbelt Museum at 10-B Crescent Road.

Greenbelt's award-winning free Artful Afternoon programs are held the first Sunday of each month at the Greenbelt Community Center and include hands-on art projects, performances, open studios and more. The programs are sponsored by the City of Greenbelt with support from the Maryland State Arts Council, the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Prince George's Arts Council.

City Passes Resolutions To Raise Some City Fees

by Barbara Hopkins

Resolutions to increase fees for two areas of city life in Greenbelt were on the agenda of the Greenbelt City Council when it met on June 18.

Refuse Resolution

Council adopted a resolution to increase refuse and recycling collection fees $3 per quarter to cover rising costs of employee salaries and benefits. The increase brings the refuse collection fee for individual housing units to $53 per quarter or $212 per year. Annual fees in other jurisdictions compare at $264 for Alexandria, Va., $310 in Prince George's County and $337 in Montgomery County.

The resolution provides citizens the option for a second weekly refuse pickup for an additional $28 per quarter. A one-time second pickup is available for a fee of $15.

In addition, the resolution establishes an annual fee of $27 for residents receiving refuse collection from another company to receive recycling pickup from the city.

The resolution becomes effective July 1.

Aquatic Center Fees

Councilmember Edward Putens introduced for first reading a resolution to establish an increase in fees for annual, nine-month and

Letters to the Editor

THANKS

I would like to thank all our friends and loved ones who supported Ray and me with visits, phone calls and well wishes during Ray's illness.

I would like a special thank you to go out to the motorcycle riders who braved the thunderstorm and rode their motorcycles in the procession.

Ray loved his friends, his customers, family and life. We will all miss him.

Recycling Mercury

Recent newspaper articles have recommended reducing energy use at home by switching to fluorescent lighting, including those newfangled spiral fixtures which fit into the sockets of regular filament bulbs. Though their cost is much higher, they repay it handsomely by a longer lifetime and only about 1/4 of the power consumption for comparable light output.

The same articles cautioned users about the disposal of these fixtures (and of regular straight fluorescents) because they contain mercury, which harms the environment. One small detail was omitted: where and how does one do so or get rid of other items containing mercury, e.g. certain batteries?

I have searched the web and found no place for such disposal (except on an industrial scale, expensively). Does the city of Greenbelt have any answer? Or if not, is it willing to take the initiative? I'll gladly bring my mercury-containing trash to a collection bin, say next to the public works yard.

Have You Spotted An Outstanding Citizen

With Greenbelt's Labor Day Festival rapidly approaching, all Greenbelters are asked to be on heightened alert for this year's Outstanding Citizen. The process of identifying that special person in a city of citizen volunteers is difficult and requires input from citizens like you!

Some outstanding citizens are easily spotted because of their creative leadership and their high visibility within organizations. Or they may touch others in a quiet way and are characterized by a strong sense of compassion and a desire to serve.

While a committee will select 2007's Outstanding Citizen, that selection – the 35th since the award began in 1973 – is made from nominations submitted from the community. Help identify our city's outstanding citizen by completing the nomination form on page 12. Describe, in your own words, your nominee's contributions or acts of kindness.

Nominations are due on August 6, 2007. The opening ceremonies of Greenbelt's Labor Day Festival will include the announcement of Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen. Besides the recognition and congratulatory proclamations, the honoree serves as the Grand Marshal for the Labor Day Parade.

All of us have had the opportunity to be associated with individuals from within Greenbelt who have distinguished themselves for their outstanding volunteer service to our community. Rarely do they receive the recognition they deserve. History indicates that many of Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizens have been nominated several times before their selection. The committee encourages nominators to be persistent.

We know we can count on you to keep this as one of Greenbelt's special events!

Bamboo Uses

I subscribe to the e-newsletter "Cuba News Digest" and this short article just came out re: uses of bamboo in Cuba. I thought it timely and interesting.

I'm leaving for Venezuela today (Tuesday) for eight weeks to teach art classes to poor barrio children in a cultural/community center in Merida city. I plan to work up an article when I return about my experience.

Cuba Promotes Use
Of Bamboo in Construction
Monday, June 18, 2007

<http://www.dtcuba.com/shownews.aspx?c=22572&lng=2>

Havana – Cuban experts are weighing several options to use bamboo in construction works underway throughout the country.

Several projects are being carried out at the Center for Research and Development of Structures and Materials (CIDEM), attached to the Central University of Las Villas.

The strategy is aimed at replacing traditional timber in construction works. Good results in that field have been produced in the eastern Cuban provinces of Holgu n and Granma.

Bamboo is an excellent material to make a wide range of products, including pressed boards or to be used as an alternative fuel to fire clay bricks.

The researchers' work also includes the development of techniques to dry and cure bamboo using solar energy and to produce pressed boards at a small scale.

Bamboo can adapt to all climates from tropical to temperate, grows rapidly and is resistant and flexible.

About Bamboo

The spread of bamboo need not be inevitable.

I have enjoyed my neighbor's bamboo planting for nearly 20 years and it has not spread in the least. Preparation and perhaps variety are key.

The secret was the 3-foot deep steel plates he used to contain the roots before planting.

With care we can enjoy bamboo and keep it in its place.

Dividers on Ora Glen

I seem to recall that when plans were made to construct traffic calming devices on roads in Greenbelt East, they were to be placed at strategic locations where they would have an effect on traffic flow. The recent construction of dividers at two locations on Ora Glen Drive does not seem logical to me.

The dividers are positioned in the street where they seem not to be of any use at all. In fact, there are no side streets or driveways at these locations. What is the purpose of dividing the street at these places? The divider at the corner of Ora Glen and Hanover narrows the street enough so as to almost eliminate the left turn lane, while the divider located up the street about a hundred meters seems to have no purpose at all! In fact, I think that these dividers pose a hazard to drivers. I've little doubt that there will be, perhaps on dark and rainy nights, cars hitting those dividers from time to time. I only hope that there will be no serious accidents from such collisions.

Some weeks ago, while turning left from Megan Lane onto Hanover Parkway, I saw an SUV hung up with its two left wheels in the dirt on the Hanover Parkway divider at that location. I was surprised that the vehicle hadn't flipped over.

I am disappointed that the city has spent some tens of thousands of dollars from an already tight budget to construct dividers that seem to have no purpose other than to make the street look a little prettier.

Real Estate Tax, Greenbelt Tax

I have noticed that quite a few home owners think that their annual real estate taxes represent only their Greenbelt city taxes. An example is Jonathan Murray's letter to the editor, in which he writes, "I agree that Greenbelt has excellent services. But my $4,200 (and rising) tax bill for this year is kind of hard to swallow."

Since I have not yet received my tax bill for this year, I base the following remarks on my 2006/2007 tax bill. That bill states with fat letters:

Total county portion of the tax bill is 42.37 percent of which 42.41 percent goes to the public schools. Other taxing authorities get 57.63 percent.

The "other taxing authorities" are the State of Maryland, Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, Stormwater/Chesapeake Bay Water Quality, Washington Suburban Transit Commission, City of Greenbelt and Solid Waste Service Charge (there is also a Credit: a Homestead Tax Credit, which for my house was $196.42). Of these the city taxes are by far the largest amount: they accounted for 43.42 percent of the total tax bill.

To the best of my knowledge, these percentages are basically the same for all houses. Thus, for example, the above quoted $4,200 tax bill should contain about $1,824 city taxes.

These figures show that city policy has a limited influence on total real estate taxes. In addition, a considerable portion of city taxes is more or less fixed (has to be paid).

I'm afraid there are no easy answers but understanding the real relationships may help.

Correction

On the Police Page in last week's issue we welcomed home a Greenbelt police officer who returned from service in Iraq but with the wrong first name. Our apologies! The article can be found with the correct name on page 8.

Frieze Work Looks Great

In the May 31 issue of the News Review it was reported that the statues were to be repaired, both the Mother and Child and the friezes on the front of the Community Center. The work was done in time for the 70th anniversary of the city.

If you haven't seen them, it is worth the trip to the Community Center – the friezes were not only cleaned, the paint spatters were also removed. The work was done by Conservation Solutions, Inc.

The work was funded by a matching grant the city received from the Maryland Historical Trust.

Chromatics Lead Café Fundraiser

by Leslie Brothers

On Friday, June 29 at 8 p.m. Greenbelters can again experience a local favorite, “The Chromatics,” who along with “Ephonism” and “Tonic & Gin” will be playing a fundraiser at the New Deal Café. Dubbed the “Singing Scientists” by the New York Times, the Chromatics have appeared at the NDC numerous times over the years, dating back to when it first opened in the Community Center. With dulcet tones and witty lyrics, the Chromatics sing about modern life like television, technology and suburbia. Combining pop-rock with a capella their intricate vocals soar around original tunes, cover melodies and science songs.

They also have great fun using their professional experiences as astrophysicist (soprano Padi Boyd), architect (tenor Barry Mahaffey), satellite engineer (tenor-baritone John Meyer), astronomer (bass Alan Smale) and computer specialists (soprano Deb Nixon and tenor/alto/soprano Karen Smale) to create astronomy songs for kids. Their music regularly is nominated for WAMMIES (Washington Area Music Awards). Stop by their website <http://www.thechromatics.com/> to download free tunes like “Noctilucent Cloud” and “Chromatic Organum.”

The new guns are made in America and parts are readily available. One of their desirable features is an interchangeable grip allowing adjustments for officers with small hands.

In Memoriam

Ray Bailey – A Role Model in Life and Death

Greenbelters old and new were saddened by the passing of Ray Bailey, a son of one of the oldest and most thoroughly entrenched families in all of Greenbelt. He was well-known, liked and respected by all he knew or did business with. And he and his brother Ricky did business with a lot of us, being first-class auto mechanics. The two worked together first at the Shell at Beltway Plaza and then at Bill Novick’s Mobil Station (now Sunoco) at Roosevelt Center. At his funeral service, Ray’s brother Earl noted that he knew of no one or no event that could break the bond between Ray and Ricky. They worked together for 32 years.

We who have grown up here like to joke that everybody is connected to the Baileys somehow. With nine children and a host of grandchildren and great-grandchildren, Ray’s mother Shirley and his late father Ray, Sr., laid down roots that run deep in Greenbelt’s clay for a tree that continues to provide shade and comfort to many throughout the city. My niece is married to Ricky – a connection. Ray was the oldest son. He liked that role and played his part well in the family’s drama. And he loved Greenbelt. Shirley, his mother, related to me that she and Ray, Sr., had talked about moving out of Greenbelt to a larger home in one of the surrounding communities. Ray told them they could go if they liked but he was staying. Ray was 12 at the time.

He lived on Southway during the years he worked at the Mobil/Sunoco station and he walked to work, stopping at the store each day to pick up a paper for his mother, as Earl noted he did every day for as long as Earl could remember. Ray lived with his wonderful wife Christy and his loving son Raymond. He didn’t smoke or drink or gamble but he did love to ride his Harley-Davidson motorcycle. Ricky used to joke that if there was a cloud anywhere in the sky, even in the farthest distance, Ray would not take his “bike” out, he loved it so. He lived a life you would wish for your own child or sibling.

Ray would correct you if you said something that he perceived was even slightly wrong – not in an abrasive, harsh fashion but in that certain manner to assist you in getting it right. You knew he had a lot of experience at it with his younger siblings. And if Ray said it, it was accepted.

But who corrected Ray? Why Christy, of course, with her great memory and her touch for what was the best part of a particular event. I was able to visit them in their home a few times while Ray was sick and the love and respect between them was immense. The aura they projected together was warm and comforting. Ray was always upbeat in those visits and thoroughly interested in the news of the city. We traded stories about old times and different names from Greenbelt’s history. I am told he was laughing, joking and smiling almost to the very end.

Ray was told he had a terminal illness late last year and that he had four to six weeks to live. The family was concerned that he would not be around for Christmas. But Ray had a responsibility and I think he decided he would stay until he had discharged it fully. Earl told me

Ray spoke to each of his siblings in turn just before they all left for an annual family camping trip. The family thought of canceling but “Ray wouldn’t hear of it,” as Earl recounted at the funeral. Ricky and my niece Jennifer stayed behind with Christy. Perhaps Ricky sensed a need. When the time arrived, Ray had Raymond come home from the campsite. At the end, he wanted his wife, his life-long companion Ricky and his son to be there and he wanted to be there for his son. Ray was setting an example in dying with dignity, just as he had shown how to live with dignity.

Some folks read magazines and watch television to track celebrities and get a glimpse of greatness. We had greatness right here in Ray. You can see it yourself when you witness the love displayed by the Baileys, to each other and to those connected to them, even if only through a niece’s marriage.

What is the Bahá'í Faith?

The youngest of the world's independent religions. It is based on the teachings of Baha'u'llah (1817-1892), who is regarded [by Baha'is] as the most recent in a line of Messengers of God that includes Abraham, Moses, Buddha, Zoroaster, Christ, and Muhammad.

STOP, LOOK and LISTEN

As we see the flowers bloom and trees turn green, it reminds us of the one who created the serene nature in perfect harmony. It is our job now to keep this harmony in our dealings as well, as the Creator reminds us: "The sun and the moon follow courses (exactly) computed; and the herbs and the trees bow in adoration. And the skies He (God) has raised high, and He has set up the balance (of justice), in order that you may not transgress due balance. So establish weight with justice and fall not short in the balance!" – The Holy Qur'an, 55:5-10 summer-only passes for residents and nonresidents to the Aquatic & Fitness Center. The resolution will come before council again for second reading and adoption at its meeting on July 9.

Council approved a five percent increase in pass rates for the Aquatic & Fitness Center when adopting the Fiscal Year 2008 budget. Fees shown in the new schedule appear to have been rounded up or down to the nearest dollar. Assuming the resolution is passed, the increases will take effect on September 4, the day after Labor Day. Liz Park attended the Maryland Juvenile Justice Coalition Steering and Public Policy Committee meeting on Tuesday, June 12. Angela Conyers Johnese, the new Juvenile Justice Policy director for Advocates for Children and Youth, was introduced to the group. In addition, legislative issues for the upcoming year were discussed.

Gas Saving Tip

Try to combine errands. According to the Department of Energy, several short trips taken from a cold start can use twice as much fuel as a longer, multipurpose trip coving the same distance when the engine is warm.

maintenance plan with guidelines for future care of the friezes.

The city and the Maryland Historical Trust were concerned about over-cleaning the friezes, which can damage limestone. The city also insisted that any chemicals used in the cleaning should not be harmful to the environment. Much of the cleaning was done with water and pH neutral bio-degradable liquid soap and non-metallic brushes.

Originally the Maryland Historical Trust thought that the crack in one of the feet of the Mother and Child Statue in Roosevelt Center was not such a problem but after inspection, the conservators realized it needed repair work. It was fixed by pinning.

Holes are drilled for stout pins to secure a foot.

A member of the conservation team cleans and repairs the 70-year-old Mother and Child statue in Roosevelt Center and the friezes on the Community Center. Above, the worker injects sealer to fill cracks.

Police Blotter

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department.
Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Robberies

7500 block Mandan Road, June 9, 3:07 p.m., a woman walking on the sidewalk was accosted by a man who left a van which had pulled up beside her. The robber displayed a handgun and demanded her purse. After getting the purse, the robber reentered the van and left the scene. The van, a 1999 Dodge Caravan, had been reported stolen earlier in the day from the 9100 block of Edmonston Court. The van was recovered June 12 in Waldorf. There were no arrests.

The robber is described as a black male with hair in cornrows and wearing a dark T-shirt and blue jeans. A black female passenger was with him in the vehicle.

Beltway Plaza, June 11, 6:20 p.m., while in the parking lot a green-over-tan Chevrolet Tahoe pulled up beside a victim. The front seat passenger exited the vehicle displaying a handgun and demanded the victim's orange BMX-style bicycle. The robber is described as a black male, 5'8", 120 pounds, wearing gray shorts.

6100 block Breezewood Court, June 12, 3:25 a.m., as a man approached a residence he was accosted by two men, one armed with a handgun, who demanded and obtained money. The two men then fled the area.

7200 block Sunset Place, June 13, 3:25 p.m., a student returning from school was accosted by four black males wearing ski masks and black shoes who demanded and obtained the victim's bracelet and then fled on foot.

Assaults

7800 block Hanover Parkway, June 11, 4:15 p.m., a school bus driver was dropping students off at a stop when two youths who do not ride his bus tried to get on. The driver denied entry. One of the youths then threw a deck of cards at the driver, hitting him in the head. The other youth attempted to spray an unknown substance at the driver but the driver was able to close the bus door. The driver suffered a minor injury. The youths were black males ages 13 to 14. One was five feet in height, 130 pounds in weight with black hair in a short bush and wearing an orange polo shirt and blue jeans. The other was 5'3" in height, 130 pounds in weight with hair also in a short bush and wearing a white sleeveless T-shirt and blue jeans.

9000 block Breezewood Terrace, June 13, 6:22 p.m., Tamera Christine Williams, 25, of 9115 Springhill Lane, apartment 202, was arrested and charged with first degree assault and second degree assault after officers, responding to a report of a cutting, learned from the victim that she had been cut by the suspect with a pair of scissors on the chest, arms and hands following a verbal dispute. The victim was transported to Prince George's Hospital for treatment of minor injuries. Williams was transported to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a district court commissioner.

A man found in the residence was found to have been banned from the apartment complex by the agent for the property and was cited and released pending trial.

Police Officer Peck Welcomed Home

Greenbelt Police Officer Ryan Peck was welcomed home by Chief James Craze and council at its June 4 meeting. Peck had been serving on active duty as a hospital corpsman second class with the Navy in Iraq. Craze presented Peck with a special chief's award in recognition of his service to his country.

Peck told council that he had been assigned to an advance security unit responsible for protecting dams, spending much of his time near the Euphrates River. He said that his unit had found a lot of cached weapons. He felt his unit had made a difference. More importantly, "All of my Marines came home in one piece," he said.

"I'd tell you more but then you wouldn't want to read my book," he concluded.

Prayer of the Blessed Virgin (Never known to fail)

Oh, most Beautiful Flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful Divine Splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me here you are my Mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech You from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (Make Request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin pray with us who have recourse to thee (Three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days. Publish it and it will be granted to you. Grateful thanks. — AH

the survey could be redesigned to include areas outside of GHI. He had been working informally with Greenbelt’s Assistant Planner Terri Hruby, Cohen noted, to obtain city materials for use in GHI planning for an upcoming charette. Council members supported such contacts.

All parties agreed to maintain these communication links and that GHI would share meeting summaries with council. Cohen agreed to carry these suggestions back to the task force and to arrange for a meeting on the topic with the city’s Advisory Planning Board.

Solar Home

Another item related to the Green Ribbon Task Force’s partnership with the Potomac Valley Chapter of the American Institute of Architects (AIA-PV) in the Greener Greenbelt Initiative. This organization proposes to lease a parcel of land in historic Greenbelt on which a prototype energy-efficient solar-powered home would be permanently located. This structure would become the home for the Potomac Valley Architectural Foundation, the AIA-PV Chapter and a proposed Greenbelt Green Design Center.

The prototype, a so-called LEAF house, is part of a project at the University of Maryland School of Architecture called “Leading Everyone to an Abundant Future.” The house is currently under construction at the University’s College Park campus and will be an entry in the US Department of Energy’s Solar Decathlon competition.

In this competition 20 solar homes, designed and constructed by university teams, will be displayed, operated and judged this fall on the National Mall in Washington, D.C.

At the request of its task force and AIA-PV, GHI is considering the possibility of finding a suitable location within GHI where the LEAF house could be placed to serve as a headquarters building for the two professional organizations, as well as a proposed design center. Anticipating that such a decision would likely involve zoning issues for the city and county, GHI President Sylvia Lewis wanted to get a reading from council on how such a proposal would be received.

Mayor Judith Davis deferred to City Manager Mike McLaughlin for his response. He felt there likely would be zoning questions that would have to be addressed with the proposal but noted that more specific information would be necessary in order to fully evaluate the proposal.

He suggested that GHI pose the questions and as much specific information as can be provided on the proposal to City Solicitor Robert Manzi. At the same time the city could get a preliminary assessment of what would be involved in such a project.

Others at the meeting had questions about the proposal and Councilmember Rodney Roberts raised his concern that the LEAF house should be used as a residence rather than for a business use. Later in the meeting he asked if the structure could be designed to resemble a GHI home. The answer was “not likely.”

Future Plans

Through a grant from the American Institute of Architects and pro-bono contributions from the AIA-PV local chapter, architects and other design professionals, the GHI Green Ribbon Task Force is in a three-year collaboration for the Greener Greenbelt Initiative. Upcoming events of the partnership include a July 17 lecture by architect Carl Elefante and planner Jim Cohen, co-sponsored by the Greenbelt Museum at the Community Center; related programs for adults and children at the Artful Afternoon on August 5 and GGI activities at the Labor Day Festival.

In addition, a community-wide interactive visioning process will be part of a GGI charette at the Greenbelt Elementary School from September 28 to 30. The charette is intended to help Greenbelt residents, business owners and city officials visualize and fine-tune ideas to address community sustainability.

Following the charette the task force and its professional partners will help GHI prepare a long-term strategic plan, including capital and operational budget needs, to enhance the affordability, livability, sustainability and design quality of the community. Green Ribbon Task Force planning meetings are scheduled for the first Tuesday of each month at 7 p.m. at the GHI administration building.

Forest Preserve

GHI President Sylvia Lewis next noted the recent activities by the city regarding its Forest Preserve Ordinance. She hoped that GHI and the city could work together on the forest preserve maintenance and management guidelines for areas adjacent to GHI and its woodlands. Lewis was reflecting concerns raised at the city council hearing May 29, where the guidelines were discussed.

At that hearing a GHI member and a GHI employee noted concerns that the guidelines may be too restrictive regarding the upkeep and preservation of “informal trails” within the Forest Preserve areas (Greenbelt News Review, June 7, 2007). Davis assured GHI representatives that they would be able to work with the Forest Preserve Advisory Board, when it is established, to implement the guidelines and to advise council on forest preserve issues.

Roberts noted that he would like to see GHI add its woodlands to the forest preserve. He also reminded everyone that the informal trails have existed for at least 70 years and have effectively maintained themselves. Luisa Robles, a new member of the GHI Board, who also served on the city’s Forest Preserve Task Force that created the guidelines, encouraged her colleagues to read the guidelines before making judgments about their intent.

Zoning Variations

Because of the unusual Residential Planned Community overlay zone for much of the GHI holdings, structural changes or new structures considered by the corporation and its members are often stymied by the difficulty in getting zoning variations. GHI used this stakeholder worksession to bring to council’s attention its plans to improve and provide structures on its existing boat and camper storage lot behind the GHI administration building. Again GHI posed to council and city staff its understanding of the zoning requirements before any serious planning for the improvements took place.

Another item on the agenda was GHI consideration of a request by Verizon to construct a communications tower on GHI property adjacent to the Baltimore-Washington Parkway right-of-way. Such a tower could be constructed in the area near the aforementioned storage lot.

Here, because council had in the past dealt negatively with such requests by telecommunications firms for such structures, there was no reluctance on the part of some councilmembers to indicate that it might be a bad idea. Roberts strongly advised that “{any} payment (offered by the firms) would not be worth degrading the historic character of the area.”

Encroachment

Next up for discussion was the perennial issue of city encroachment on GHI property and vice-versa. These often minor encroachments arise because of the early history of the original core development in Greenbelt center when the city management and the federal ownership and management of the property were intertwined and property lines and street rights-of-way were not established.

The case that GHI was bringing to the attention of council was where a unit owner had placed a storage unit within the city right-of-way. GHI’s remedy for such incursions has been to effect removal of the shed or structure when the GHI unit is sold.

In this case there was miscommunication that resulted in the unit not being removed. Council agreed that the GHI policy is a good one. Councilmember Leta Mach thought that the city actually had a similar policy and everyone regretted the breakdown in this case.

Although not involving encroachment, GHI raised another issue that involved the increasing use by businesses and homeowners of so-called PODs or temporary storage containers in driveways or yards during renovations of a unit. Davis indicated that council will be looking at that issue from a city-wide perspective and the Planning Department is working on a proposed city ordinance covering the use of PODs and dumpsters on private property.

Ballfield Lights

The remaining items on the GHI proposed agenda were handled fairly expeditiously. On the question of lights at Wolfe Field at the end of Northway, council assured GHI that there were no active plans for lights at the field. The lights item, in the city list of Capital Projects, is not funded. A master plan for the Northway Field area is yet to be done.

GHI expressed concern that the Greenbelt Police were not responding in their usual manner to GHI member requests or calls about neighbor behavior. Callers are being asked to dial another number and dispatchers tend to summarily downplay the importance of the call.

Council and city staff were surprised at this report and registered concern. McLaughlin suggested there be a staff-to-staff discussion on the issue in order to understand and resolve the problem.

Other items referred for further staff-to-staff discussion were possible damage to GHI common areas by city or contractor vehicles and ways to prevent such damage; a review of the city’s leaf collection policy to see if certain areas of GHI would lend themselves to the vacuum roadside leaf collection enjoyed by other subdivisions and the general issue of safe and convenient walkway connections throughout the community and a more specific look at the condition of the Gardenway underpass in the vicinity of the Sunoco station regarding deteriorating pavement.

GHI leaders briefly mentioned the city’s adoption of the Fiscal Year 2008 budget and the 2-cent city tax increase. The board expressed concern regarding the citizen petition circulated among non-GHI neighborhoods opposing the increase in the rate and using the argument that GHI was not paying its fair share of city tax revenues. The GHI feeling was that the language in the circulated petition was divisive and could create a split in the sense of community traditionally expected in Greenbelt.
